THE DEATH PENALTY .- To the Editor he Cleveland Leader :- A perusal of your artiele on the above subject has led me to ask place in your paper for a few remarks

With all respect toward the authors and signers of the petition in behalf of Doctor Hughes, I am constrained, in common with every person save one with whom I have aversed on the subject, to differ from enm, both as to the policy and propriety of the measure. But what are the grounds on which a commutation of the sentence i sought to be obtained? The subject of it is said to be converted, to be repentant. "Repentance towards God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ" will, doubtless, save him from "the bitter pains of eternal death"; but will it restore to life his murdered victim? Will it heal the heart wounds of her aged pa rents? Will it atone to society for the ous wrong done to it by this deed of blood? Should it cause justice to forego her claim to retribution for as foul a murder as the annals of crime can furnish ? But I hold that true repentance is always accompanied | Pennsylvania Salt Manuf'g Company by confession; Dr. Hughes, in contradiction to his own repeated declarations of intentional murder, and subsequently that he had 'done what he intended to do," now denies it. The reason of his denial is perfectly obvious. In conclusion, I fully agree with
